DETAILED ACTION

Claim(s) 1-8 is/are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Harris (US 2002/0164263).

Regarding claim 1, Harris teaches (see Alloys CM 247 LC and CM 186 LC in Table 1) nickel-base heat resistant case alloys having, by weight percent, the claimed amounts of C, Si, Mn, Cr, Al, Co, W, Ta, Ti, Zr and B and the balance Ni and inevitable impurities, further inherently satisfying both the Al+Ti+Ta formula and the M-value formula. The Examiner asserts that the alloys would inherently have the claimed eutectoid area percentage and the claimed carbide percentage because the alloys have substantially the same composition and substantially the same processing. See MPEP 2112.01 I.

With respect to the recitation "consists essentially of" in claim 1, it is the applicant's burden to establish that the amount of Mo, Re and Hf included in Alloys CM 247 LC and CM 186 LC is excluded from the claims by consisting essentially of language. See MPEP 2111.03.

Art Unit: 1742

Regarding claim 2, Alloys CM 247 LC and CM 186 LC do not necessitate the presence of any Mg, Ca or REM.

Regarding claim 3, Alloys CM 247 LC and CM 186 LC further contain 0.5 wt% Mo.

Regarding claim 4, see the rejections of claims 2-3.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harris et al. as applied to claims 1-4 above, and further in view of the admitted prior art (see lines 16-20 in the background section of the specification of the instant application).

Regarding claims 5-8, the applicant admits (see lines 16-20 in the background section of the specification of the instant application) that turbine wheels for automobile engines require heat resistant property and enough strength at high temperatures.

Harris teaches (0001) that the alloy would have superior high temperature mechanical properties. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the alloy of Harris with the turbine wheel of the admitted prior art because the alloy of Harris has superior high temperature mechanical properties.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 29 June 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

First, applicant argues that Harris does not teach the claimed chromium range. The Examiner disagrees. See Alloys CM 247 LC and CM 186 LC in Table 1.

Second, applicant argues that the "consisting essentially of" limitation excludes the about 3% Re content of Harris. In response, firstly the Examiner notes that Alloy CM 247 LC does not necessitate the addition of any Re. Secondly, see MPEP 2111.03. For the purposes of searching for and applying prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102 and 103, absent a clear indication in the specification or claims of what the basic and novel characteristics actually are, "consisting essentially of" will be construed as equivalent to "comprising". The applicant has not provided a clear indication of what the basic and novel characteristics actually are, and therefore applicant's further arguments do not distinguish the prior art alloys from the claimed invention.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP

Art Unit: 1742

§ 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
